MATLAB is a high-performance language for technical computing. It integrates computation, visualization, and programming in an easy-to-use environment where problems and solutions are expressed in familiar mathematical notation. Typical uses include: Math and computation.

MATLAB (Matrix Laboratory) is a programming environment for algorithm development, data analysis, visualization, and numerical computation, developed by MathWorks. MATLAB is widely used for for matrix-based computation designed for scientific and engineering use.

Features of MATLAB

It is a high-level language for numerical computation, visualization and application development. ... It provides vast library of mathematical functions for linear algebra, statistics, Fourier analysis, filtering, optimization, numerical integration and solving ordinary differential equations

MATLAB (matrix laboratory) is a multi-paradigm numerical computing environment and proprietary programming language developed by MathWorks. ... Although MATLAB is intended primarily for numerical computing, an optional toolbox uses the MuPAD symbolic engine allowing access to symbolic computing abilities.

a lot. Very many or very much or very often is a lot. If you like something very much, you might say, "I like it a lot, or if you have a large amount of homework, you can say, "I have a lot of homework." A lot is correctly written as two words, not alot. You might wonder why.

Alot is a common misspelling of a lot. A lot should always be spelled as two words. The meaning of a lot depends on the context.
The two-word construction a lot is just that: two separate words. You have the article a and the noun lot. The word lot is defined as, “a large number or amount, a great deal.”
Both 'a lot' and 'lots' are considered to be informal terms, though I would tend towards 'lots' being the more informal. Put simply, I hear 'thanks a lot' far more than I hear 'thanks lots'
